NEXT WEEK: INSIGHT INTO HEROIN USE

In case you haven't heard . . . we had a little high water in Elba last week. To some families it was a disaster but even to those it could have been worse if the fine people of this area had not esponded so beautifully. As one news reporter commented "They didn't use the shelters set up in neighboring towns, because local friends, neighbors and relatives took in their flooded fellow man." You must witness this warmhearted affection to understand why I respond to the question of "Why do you like ment, Sheriff's Department, Elba?" with something about it being a good place to live and Game Wardens, Civil Defense,

The professional people sent into Elba to help with flood relief have constantly expressed amazement at the smoothness of the entire operation. I was equally impressed with the dedication of all who helped. Yet, this week as people began to unwind from the tense week, there was grumbling and criticism of one or the other individual and/or department. Standing back and looking at this, I class this as releasing tension and nothing True, I can think of things that could have been done. differently, but most all of us have better hindsight than foresight. All in all, everything went well, and I defy anyone to

A couple of weeks ago I attended a play at Troy State University. The main reason I went was because my baby sister was in what is perhaps her last play as an undergraduate at TSU After the play I asked her just why she had spent four years of college studying speech and then play the part of the old woman who doesn't say a word in the entire production! That sounds like the "old army" to me.

From time to time I see an editorial in another newspaper that om thie to time i see an earlie bit. This happened last week with loading those State trucks as THE DAILY LEDGER in Enterprise. Frankly, I think it stems well as City dump trucks until the estate of Dozier S. Bryan, from lack of information, but here is what they say: The front well after midnight in an enpage editorial takes the County Commissioners to task because deavor to stop the flow of watthey have not adopted the flood plan for Coffee County. Accord- er across Putnam Street. I ing to the Ledger this is why Elba folks can't get flood insurance thought I saw Division Enat a reasonable cost. THIS IS WRONG! Elba adopted the plan gineers, Division Maintenance several years ago and any house in Elba (either inside or out-Engineers, Traffic Engineers, side the levee) can get this insurance and the most it will cost. Bridge Engineers and numis $2.50 per thousand on the house and $3.50 per thousand on the contents. This figure will not drop one cent if the comtors, etc. in the District tors, etc. missioners adopt forty plans. This was advertised extensively in this newspaper and on radio, yet only 18 policies are ment from Monday night until office of the Highway Departin force within Elba at this time! Folks are like me . . I Friday, around the clock, with no let up in sight for either nesday as I looked out the office door and saw those sandbags of these two agencies. But, at the levee, I sure questioned my judgement.

Editorial WE'RE PROUD OF OUR F.T.A./S.A.F.E.

The F.T.A./S.A.F.E. and its sponsor, Mrs. Melinda Sanders, is to be commended on the program and tea held for Teacher Appreciation Day, The group's president, Richard Adair, made a most "teacherencouraging" speech and this along with all the activities helped to draw students and teachers closer together. Ri-chard mentioned in his speech that since he was considering teaching as a career that he tried now to see things through a teacher's eyes. Wouldn't we have a much better envir onment for learning if all students tried this as well as if all teachers tried to seethings through a student's eyes?
